M. M. Jordan, chief of police, and Detective Williamson testified to the arrest and taking from Ario a revolver, one chamber of which had but recently been discharged. The inquest then adjourned until 10 a. m. to-morrow, in consequence of the absence of important witnesses. Just as Mrs. Tate was leaving the court-room, she glanced at Ario, who was standing beside one of his autorneys, and exclaiming in a tragic manner, "Oh, Arto, Arto, look what you have done; look at these little children, and just think of the misery you have brought on us;" and continued in the strain until ied from the court-room. Arto is about 27 years old, dark complexion, devold of surplus flesh, weighs about 135 pounds, and in action is wiry and supple. Has dark mustache, bine-gray eyes, dark hair, closely cropped, remular features, and a low-oval forehead which is occasionally distorted with a frown He was dressed in tight coordurey pasts, gray linen vest, white shirt and low-cut shoes, and seemed to be the least unconcerned man in the court-room. Arto, at adjournment, was conducted back to jail.

A Phenomenally Quiet and Dull Day

The voting on the adoption of constitutional amendments and the election of two public weighers for Dalias county passed off quietly yesterday, and had it not been that the saloons were all closed and the sight of an occasional back with streamers, bearing the reme of some condidate one would rever occasional back with streamers, bearing the name of some candidate, one would Lever have dreamed that a county and state election was going on. The voting was tame throughout the day, and, so far as heard from, it was more so in the county than in the city, several precincts failing to open. The raloonists opened up their places in the morning, and it was not until the sheriff had warned them that an election was in progress that they closed up. The indications are that the amendments will carry by a good majority, though the vote cast in both city and county will hardly reach 1,800, if that.

The following is the vote for the amendments.

feverish period, during which stocks might sink lower than at present, followed by a strong apward movement, lasting all winter. There was no reason in the world why any panic should be feared, the business of the country being in an excellent condition, and the outlook for a large export trade of grain being unparalleled. Conditions which preceded the panic of 1873 are all absent. Broyton Ives said he did not believe the failure of Ballou & Co. would affect prices, unless it was to send them up. The moral effect of such a failure was, of course, bad at the moment, but there was no reason to believe the winter's business would not be such as to cause a flow of gold towards this country by Christmas. After the exchange closed a number of leading bankers expressed themselves as feeling more confident that the future liquidations going on for sometime, have resulted in placing the market on a healthy basis, and already there are indications of investment. The public, both here and abroad, are purchasing. Sales of stock, according to the official list of the Stock exchange, amounted to 576 770 shares. A broker, who did not leave all day, estimates them at fully 700,000 shares. New York, Aug. 14—George W. M. Ballou & Co. announce their suspension in the stock exchange. The firm states that the suspension will be only temporary.

Intense excitement is caused in Wall street and on the Stock exchange to-day, by the announcement of the failure. The house did a large and extensive business, and its customers were principally bank presidents throughs out the country, Boston capitalists and New England estates. Ballou refused to make any statement concerning the suspension, other than it was caused by the failure of his customers to respond to calis for margins. Another member of the firm were ontario. Western, Missouri Pacific and Western Union. It is roughly estimated that the liabilities amount to between $400,000 and $500,000. Under the exchange prices and not materially affected, but there was no end to the rumors and the rumors and excitement. It is said the failure will seriously cripple several other large houses in the street.

Bosron, Aug. 14.—At the office of George William Ballou & Co. very little respecting the suspension is to be learned. It is stated, however, that the assignment has been made to Thomas M. Evan, who is connected with the firm.

A prominent banker of this city said that Ballou's suspension was occasioned by the refusal of the bank to further certify the firm's checks, but that the embarassment was probably only temporary. The firm has been larger holders of San Pedro, Toledo, Cincinnati and St. Louis and Mutual Union stocks, and the suspension was due in a large degree to a decline in these shares.

At the office of George William Ballou it is said they have no statement to make, and expect to resume business in a short time. About 17,000 shares of stock have been closed out under rule for account of Ballou.

The announcement that George William

Ballou.

The announcement that George William Ballon & Co., had suspended, caused excitement on the streets and in business circles, secondarily to that of following the suspension of the Shaw Bros. & Co., a few days ago. The first intimation to the Boston house of any trouble was a dispatch from Ballou, saying the assignment had been made to Theodore M. Nevans, clerk in the New York house. It was as much a surprise to the Boston firm as to the public generally. Members of the firm here say the Boston house is all right, but of course will now have to go down with the New York concern.
